About me

I am Frontend developer with 3+ years of professional experience as a developer, consultant & designer. I have been passionate about web development since 2015, and have a bachelor in the field from Copenhagen School of Business and Technology (KEA). I live and work in the Copenhagen area.

I am very passionate about my work and care deeply about making a project that satisfies both users and clients. To me, user experience, application performance and project maintainability are critical to the success of a project. I see it as my responsibility to always keep each of these in mind, so I can be sure that each decision I make is the right one for the project. To do this, I always strive to improve myself through research, side projects and podcasts, so I can keep up with the latest technologies and development practices.

My skills include

React JS

TypeScript

JavaScript

SCSS

UX Design

... And more!
